TREE PLANTING

VARIETIES SUITABLE FOR CULTURE IN CALIFORNIA CITIES

In line with the tree planting crusade now in progress in Glendale is the following interesting and highly instructive article by Edward R. Lott of St. Paul, Minn., a son-in-law of M. B. Hartmann of this city, an active member of the Glendale Garden society and interested in all civic improvement. All who are interested in improving their property in beauty and value will be interested in this article:

From the standpoint of both the individual and the community there is no other asset that can be put upon the land in municipal and agricultural California so valuable as trees. And there is particular need for planting trees in what is particularly waste land, the curb-lines of streets and the sides of country roads. Such trees, properly planted and persistently cared for, are valuable to all, as well as to one for several amply good reasons. As a purely commercial matter, it is now well known that street or road trees increase property values. As a matter of comfort, too, street trees are a boon in a land where, for five or six months, cloudless skies prevail.

Again, in the problem of rendering a locality attractive, trees furnish one of the most effective instruments for improvement clubs. It is not difficult in some towns to find uncompromising rows of naked houses. A few of these may be architecturally artistic, more may be unobjectionable and a few may be atrocious. It is, however, a citizen's vested privilege to build any sort of habitation that may suit his means, taste, or please his fancy. We cannot object to the style or color of paint, however much it may offend. But the public has this one resource. We can subdue man's colors by nature's colors. We can break rigid lines by the smooth outlines of trees. Finally, lines of trees in country districts, if planted on all roads and fence lines, ameliorate climate by mitigating the effect of hot or cold winds. It is now well established that crops may be partly or wholly saved by such means on critical days when cereals are "in the milk."

The planting of trees and shrubs as public improvements should always be under the direction of a permanent organization in order that the investment in nursery stock shall not be wasted. The planting of trees and shrubs on streets or country roads calls for the observance of certain general rules or canons of taste, which are fundamental and are everywhere applicable. One of the main rules of observance is to plant only one species of trees throughout a street on both of its sides. Thus you will note the object is to secure uniformity. Distance between trees is another point to be observed. In this case the distance between trees should not be less than fifty feet. With some species of trees even this may be closer than necessary. Still another point needing much attention is the selection of trees. It must be remembered by those who favor street trees that there are many and valid objections to them. There are certain kinds of trees which disturb cement sidewalks, sprout freely, obstruct sewers and entail great expense, shade the streets in the rainy season so that they do not dry out and so render them unsanitary, shut out the views or look ridiculous. All of these things may and do happen. The condition of soil and climate in California are, however, so exceedingly various that it is impossible to formulate general rules which would apply to all parts of the state. We have three classes of trees suitable for general planting—deciduous trees, evergreen trees and palms. The last two types are highly adapted for parks, gardens and plantations. Evergreens are not suitable for streets, except in those portions of the state having scanty or precarious rainfall. Great judgment should be exercised in the use of palms. They are not suitable for ordinary city or town streets because they obstruct the sidewalks when young and when tall emphasize their lack of suitable surroundings. The palm, when well grown, is a truly royal tree, but it requires room; it demands imperial spaces, and, better still, retinues of shrubs and trees. If palms be demanded, demand in turn wide parks, boulevarded driveways, or parked streets. Deciduous trees for general street purposes have added advantages over such evergreens as are suitable for streets in that they do not present the year round one dull line of foliage. Deciduous trees change their apparel two or three times in the season,

SERVICE IS NEEDED

GLENDALE PEOPLE UNFAIRLY TREATED IN MAIL DELIVERY MATTER

The city of Glendale has not anyone to look after her interests in the postoffice in securing good mail service for the people residing in the outskirts of the Glendale community. As a sample of this unreasonable service attention is called to the instance of about twenty-five families residing in the southeastern part of the city, who receive mail from rural route number 1, Los Angeles. A letter mailed to J. C. Sherer's residence, 817 South Verdugo road, must be addressed to Route 1, Los Angeles. If the letter is placed in the Glendale postoffice on Sunday after 10:30 a. m., it will be pouched for Los Angeles Monday forenoon at 10:15 and will be delivered to Mr. Sherer's residence, which is within the city limits of Glendale, by the carrier of route 1 Tuesday forenoon. The old mail stage coach, 100 years ago, beat that service a thousand times over.

A rural mail carrier from Burbank comes into the western and northwestern section of the Glendale community to deliver mail. A letter mailed from Glendale to the Dan Campbell residence on Kenneth road would go to Los Angeles and then to Burbank and from Burbank on a rural route to the Campbell home, taking about two days to go a distance of two miles.

If a few of the kickers against an independent postoffice would get busy and get mail service for the citizens of this community who now do not enjoy good service, then they would be doing a good act.

The editor of the Evening News has in mind a feasible plan of getting much better mail service for Glendale, but he has learned that it is impossible to get improved service so long as Glendale remains merely a post station of the Los Angeles postoffice.

BOMB CASE TRIAL

Trial of the members of the German Consular corps and others on charge of violating American neutrality is now being held in San Francisco. Charges of dynamiting a barge loaded with Russian munitions and of sending supplies to a German squadron are made against Franz Bopp, German consul-general; Baron E. H. von Shack, vice-consul; Baron Wilhelm von Brincken, German Military attache; Charles C. Crowley, German Consulate secret service man; Margaret W. Cornell, Crowley's secretary and a number of business men. The dynamiting of the munitions occurred in May, 1915, as the barge was being prepared for shipment to Vladivostock. The government contends that the explosion was caused by a bomb planted at the instance of the defendants. The second charge is that the German Consulate officers with local business men sent the steamer Sacramento to sea with a cargo of coal for the vessels of Admiral von Spee's squadron, later destroyed in the Faulkland islands battle. The defendents deny guilt and strenuously object to the combining of the two charges as they are very different and the work of securing a fair jury is made vastly more difficult by combining the cases.

DISTRICT MEETING, I. O. O. F.

Thursday evening, November 16, members of Glendale lodge of Odd Fellows were hosts to the members of the district lodge to the number of over one hundred. This district meeting was called by the worthy deputy grand master, J. P. Fancett. Seven lodges participated in this get-together meeting, including San Fernando lodge, Highland Park, East Side and three other lodges from Los Angeles. The presence of W. P. Schlosser, grand master of the state of California, added much to the interest of the meeting. His address was very instructive and was highly appreciated by those present. The lodges in this locality are very fortunate in having this officer resident in Los Angeles. The meeting was featured with great enthusiasm and was one long to be remembered by the members of the order.

CLUB WOMEN'S LUNCHEON

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones of 106 Orange street is a guest at a luncheon given today in Owensmouth for the state and national officers of the Federation of Woman's Clubs. The luncheon is in honor of Mrs. Edward Knight, California state president, and the national president, Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of Los Angeles, will also be present. Following the luncheon one hundred fifty presidents and federation secretaries will be entertained at a general reception.

DEUTSCHLAND NOT SERIOUSLY DAMAGED

GERMAN SUBMERCHANTMAN WHICH RETURNED TO PORT AFTER STRIKING TUG SLIGHTLY IMPAIRED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 18.—The Deutschland, back in her pocket in the harbor here, after having rammed and sunk the tug T. A. Scott, Jr., while making an unexpected dash out of the Thames, though slightly damaged, could return to Germany now. It is likely that the German boat will be held a few days, pending an investigation to place the blame for the sinking of the tug and the drowning of the five men which resulted from the collision. The United States inspectors of steam vessels, headed by Captain Withey, have heard the testimony of a number of persons, including Capt. Paul Koenig, his chief officer and chief engineer, as to how the Deutschland, slipping out of the harbor in the darkness in order to submerge in neutral waters before daybreak, ran down the tug that was acting as her protector.

HELEN KELLER MAY MARRY

WORLD FAMOUS BLIND, DEAF AND DUMB WOMAN REPORTED TO BE ENGAGED TO SECRETARY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—It is reported that Helen Keller, the world wonder, who has made such remarkable progress in education in spite of the seemingly insurmountable handicap of having been born blind, deaf and dumb, is to be married to her secretary, Peter Fagan. From some sources the report is contradicted.

RESTA LEADING IN GRAND PRIZE RACE

ITALIAN SPEED DEMON WHO SET NEW RECORD IN VANDERBILT CUP RACE IN LEAD

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 18.—Dario Resta, who won the Vanderbilt cup race on the Santa Monica course on Thursday, is in the lead in the Grand Prize race now on. Eddie Pullen, in his Mercer, turned over. Cooper, in a Stutz, is second to Resta. The Grand Prize race is 403.248 miles in length, which is 48 times around the Santa Monica circuit. The distance is 110 miles greater than the Vanderbilt cup race.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—It has been announced that the naval appropriations for this year are to exceed last year by $13,000,000. Contracts have been let for eight destroyers to the Fore River company.

ENGLAND TO MAKE RETALIATION

SEEKS REPRISAL AGAINST GERMANS FOR DEPORTATION OF BELGIANS INTO GERMANY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, Nov. 18.—England is seeking some means of reprisal against the Germans for deporting Belgians into Germany. Thirty thousand have already been deported, and reports say that the Germans plan to take 300,000, judging from orders issued in some cities for all males over 17 to report for inspection.

ADVANCE ON MONASTIR CONTINUES

ALLIES MAKE HEADWAY ON IMPORTANT STRATEGIC POSITION IN SPITE OF RESISTANCE

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The allied advance on Monastir, the chief Bulgarian base in Macedonia, continues and new headway is being made in spite of the tenacious Bulgaro-German resistance.

SERBIANS CAPTURE TRENCHES

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The French and Serbians have captured the entire hill upon which stands the Yarashop monastery and the village of Negocano, including a thousand yards of trenches. This position has changed hands repeatedly during the progress of the war. The British drove the Bulgars out of the fortified village of Barakli.

RANDALL'S HEARING

FIFTEEN APPLICANTS FOR POSTMASTER—FRIENDS OFFER RECOMMENDATIONS

Congressman Charles H. Randall is conducting a hearing at the high school today concerning who shall be Glendale's postmaster. The congressman has two years of experience handling such questions, so he is no amateur at the work. He is courteous and firm, and his stenographer takes notes of what is being said in favor of the various candidates. Congressman Randall's efforts in securing an independent postoffice for Glendale are being appreciated by a thankful people.

TROPICO'S KENNEL ORDINANCE

The agitation over the proposed dog kennel ordinance in Tropico is creating quite a stir among the dog fanciers and breeders in that city, and as usual the city trustees are coming in for the usual kicks and cuffs from both sides, which are sure to accompany the framing of an ordinance of this kind, while as a matter of fact the trustees are trying to get the kennel business settled satisfactorily to all concerned, but there is such a diversity of opinion as to the main features of the ordinance, that is, the distance the kennel shall be from any residence or the amount of territory over which one must get consent of property owners before a permit will be granted. Some favor a radius of 300 feet, and some 500 feet. However this part of the ordinance will be threshed out at the regular meeting Tuesday night.

MAIL ROUTES FROM GLENDALE

One more advantage which will be enjoyed by Glendale through gaining an independent postoffice was called to the attention of the Evening News last night by Mr. Cutler, a Glendale resident who is conversant with the Sawtelle independent postoffice.

That is that Glendale will have several rural routes distributing mail to territory now served by Los Angeles routes. Sawtelle at present has routes running into the communities of Westgate, Brentwood Park, Beverly Glen and the Soldiers' Home. In a like manner, the Glendale office will serve outlying territory.

The Glendale rural routes will swell the business of the local office and bring the local office up to that standard where it will represent the community in which it is located. The fact that people living within the city limits of Glendale are receiving mail from Los Angeles and Burbank routes is absurd. An independent office will make their address read "Glendale R. F. D." as soon as the routes can be established, according to our informant.

RESORT FOR SO-CALLED SICK

Of great interest is the announcement just received from Boston that the directors of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist of that city have decided to establish a Christian Science Home or Sanitorium in Brookline. Plans for the buildings will be started at once, and the work of building will be started in the spring. The resort will occupy a valuable tract of more than twenty acres, beautifully situated. The institution is the first of the kind to be established and as a result of the project a new and important department of organized work of Christian Science will be formed and will be known as the Christian Science Benevolent Association. The Sanitorium is for those seeking relief through Christian Science, a place where they may receive the proper attention. The establishement of this institution is in acordance with the wish of Mrs. Eddy who often spoke of the need of a "resort for the so-called sick." Mrs. Mary Beecher Longyear of Brookline has donated the beautiful site for this home.

DEATH OF LITTLE LOUIS MIDDLEWORTH

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Middleworth are extending sincere sympathy in their hour of great sorrow in the death of their youngest son, Wilbur Louis, aged 6 years and 6 months, which occurred at their home, 120 West Fifth street, at 3 o'clock this morning, following ten days' illness of bronchial pneumonia. Besides his parents, Louis is mourned by one brother, Ordway, and hosts of little friends and playmates.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at the home, hour not yet definitely determind. Scovern-Letton-Frey are in charge.

THRILLING ESCAPE

AGED MOTORIST CHEATS DEATH IN EXCITING PLUNGE OVER MOUNTAIN SIDE

A. P. Meeker, father of R. W. Meeker of Glendale, had a most narrow escape from certain death Thursday, when his auto left the narrow ridge route road to Bakersfield, this side of the summit, and dashed headlong down the mountain side, rolling over rocks and boulders a distance of 400 feet to the bottom of the chasm.

Mr. Meeker was en route from Meeker's Camp to Glendale, and lost control of the car on the narrow mountain road, the car keeping its balance the first hundred feet of its downward plunge, then rolling over and over another 300 feet.

That Mr. Meeker was not killed is a miracle, as he was found by a passer-by, some time after the accident, near his machine in an unconscious condition, and rushed to a hospital at Anaheim, where it was found that, although badly bruised, he was not fatally injured. R. W. Meeker of this city was notified of the accident and late Thursday night Mr. Meeker, Sr., was brought to Glendale.

Ten o'clock Friday morning R. W. Meeker and son, accompanied by Messrs. Hall and Wilson from the Reliable garage, made a record-breaking run to the scene of the accident, where the ill-fated Dodge was quickly repaired sufficiently to tow home. A peculiar phase of securing the wrecked car was the fact that young Meeker was able to pull the car from the bottom of the chasm with a light Overland, a next to impossible feat, and the car was hauled back to Glendale, a distance of over sixty miles, before midnight, Friday.

The only eye witness of the accident never stopped to assist the injured man, but simply reported to a garage a few miles further on that an auto had run over the cliff. The management of the garage, in turn, thinking the accident not serious, sent no help and had Mr. Meeker been fatally injured he would probably have died before aid reached him.

While the top, windshield, lights, running board and one wheel of the Dodge in the mishap were smashed, the sturdily constructed car withstood the accident remarkably well and can easily be repaired.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY "AT HOME"

A very delightful social affair was the "At Home" given by the Young Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church on Thursday evening, at which the husbands and other friends of the members were guests. The hostess was Mrs. T. D. Ogg of 149 South Kenwood street, whose beautiful home was given for the occasion. There were about forty present.

A delightful program was presented, consisting of piano solos by Miss Clara Waugh; vocal solos by Miss Erma Wooldridge and Mrs. Ogg, and readings by Miss Nellie Cole.

An interesting game was enjoyed and participated in by all present, and the plans carried out by the entertainment committee were both original and successful. Dainty and delicious refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed.

SEW FOR CHARITY

Chapter BA of P. E. O. held an all-day meeting Friday at the pleasant home of Mrs. Archie Parker, 311 South Louise street. Mrs. A. L. Weaver assisted the hostess and after a business session a delicious luncheon was served. The afternoon was spent in sewing for needy families in Glendale. Two new members were present, Mrs. Arthur Cross and Mrs. Pearle Guthrie, who have demitted from Chapter AT of Los Angeles to Chapter AB. Guests present were Mrs. C. E. Read of Chapter AT, Los Angeles, and Mrs. W. W. Ramsay of Chapter L, Glendale.

MARRIAGE KEPT SECRET

Friends of Lee G. Olivas and Miss Frances L. Spence were recently very much surprised to hear that they had been married at Santa Ana on the 29th of May last. They were very successful in keeping their secret and the news only leaked out when they went to housekeeping at 813½ S. Brand Boulevard, Glendale. Mr. Olivas was until very recently associated with his brother as proprietor of a grocery store on Verdugo Road. Both he and his bride are very highly respected and popular in the circles in which they move. Their friends are extending belated congratulations.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1916

DECEPTION IN NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

There is a cry throughout the land at present asking that an exact system of weights and measures be adopted that buyers may be protected. It has been learned that manufacturers are putting articles of food on the market that are short in weight. A package labeled one pound is often only 15 ounces or less. Measures are also being used that are less than the standard measure. These deceptions in weights and measures are worthy of notice and steps should be taken to protect the consumer.

A still greater and more hidden deception is that concerning false claims of newspaper circulation. Newspaper advertising is of value to the advertiser in proportion to the circulation of the paper in which he is advertising, but how is he to determine the extent of the circulation of the paper in which he has been solicited to buy advertising space? He cannot judge the extent of the circulation from a sample copy that he and his neighbor may receive. If he is a real shrewd business man he will not be satisfied by just seeing his advertisement in print, unless he is like the real estate man who had printed 1000 hand bills advertising bargains in land sales, and after calling for a proof and reading the printed bill he seemed to think the whole publicity work had been accomplished and the bills were left in the printing office to be later consigned to the waste paper basket. Perhaps a few merchants in small cities count greater importance on seeing their advertisement in type than they do in absolutely knowing that the paper containing the advertisement actually goes into the homes of the buyers in the community. There are newspapers with a 16-ounce-to-the-pound circulation and there are newspapers with a quarter-ounce-to-the-pound circulation. What would we think of a merchant selling a quarter of an ounce for a pound? You would not deal with such a merchant. The dry goods man who would attempt to sell to you one-quarter of a yard of cloth for the price of a yard would be considered a robber, and yet merchants who consider themselves shrewd business men are being sold advertising space in papers that have the one-quarter-ounce circulation at nearly the same price paid for space in papers with the 16-ounce circulation.

There is no one quite so easily fooled as the country merchant when it comes to buying newspaper space. The jobber comes along with his samples and Mr. Merchant is very careful to inquire as to quality of goods and see that he gets full count when the goods are delivered.

How different when buying advertising space. He is assured the paper in question has a good circulation and instead of asking to see the printed list of actual subscribers he contracts for the advertising because the publisher says the paper has a good circulation. A certain class of newspaper publishers has learned that merchants are the most gullible beings when it comes to buying advertising space. They will buy it without any evidence whatever of the genuineness of the circulation of the newspaper concerned.

Large business institutions and advertising agencies demand authentic evidence concerning the circulation of a newspaper before these concerns will purchase advertising space, and the rate paid is in proportion to the circulation of the paper. There is a real business way of doing everything.

THE FINANCIAL AND BUSINESS SITUATION

There is much discussion on the part of all classes as to whether or not we have been having "hard times." Before the election those who favored the re-election of President Wilson contended that we were enjoying a season of unprecedented prosperity, while others out of employment seemed to think there was a reason for the cry of hard times.

The report of one of the large California banks states that business conditions in America are better in the fall than in any other season of the year and that this year is no exception. Crops of all kinds are being marketed at uniformly high prices. Notwithstanding the country's extravagance, money has accumulated in banking circles. The purchasing power of the great masses is larger than usual and they are buying liberally. California crops have brought excellent prices, the lumber trade has improved, the consumption of crude oil has increased until demand far exceeds production and prices are necessarily advanced. Farmers are reaping a harvest from wheat, barley and corn and those contemplating buying seed for the coming season will find it very high. It is very likely that with the present shortage of grain throughout the world the crop of 1917 will command excellent figures.

A very peculiar and paradoxical condition exists. We may say that our very prosperity is the cause of a burden upon us. The scarcity of grain and the high figure it commands makes the cost of flour exorbitant. We hear much of the prosperity created by big war shipments and the big prices received for various commodities exported. This very fact increases exportations and leaves such a shortage at home that if the condition continues, those in moderate circumstances will find it difficult to purchase the bare necessaries of living. On the other hand the purchasing power of money is decreasing by a superabundance of gold.

On the one hand the country is prosperous, eastern factories are running overtime to fill the war orders. There is a foreign demand for all classes of commodities at exceptional prices, while on the other hand the masses of the people are finding it difficult to purchase the necessary articles of food and clothing.

The report of the bank mentioned above states that real estate in Southern California is assuming better proportions. A large number of substantial buildings of the factory class have been erected the past year. The high prices of commodities do not seem to effect buying orders.

LIVING ON CLIMATE

Those who would like to live in California and cannot do so are apt to take the "sour grape" attitude and speak disparaging of the climate as our only stock in trade. It is true that our climate is a great asset, in making all of Southern California a vast winter resort and a paradise for the tourist. The overworked statement that "you can't live on climate" may be contradicted. The long rainless summers and the cloudless autumns are necessary for the proper maturing and harvesting of many farm and orchard products. Moisture supplied in other regions by the natural means is here furnished by irrigation and can be controlled according to the needs of the crops. In fact the rains which set in last month so much earlier than is usually the case were the cause of considerable damage. Raisins, beans, walnuts, alfalfa and Egyptian corn when nearing the ripening stage were damaged in some localities. Sugar beets while increased in size as a result of the rains have lost in sugar content, and while all pasture lands were greatly benefited and fall plowing made easier and earlier, yet the ranchers are congratulating themselves that the early rains are only occasional and not habitual, for their living is dependent upon the climate.

FARMS ON EDGE

What might be described as farms on edge are the famous rice terraces upon the mountain slopes of the Philippine islands. These farms, in the shape of ribbons miles and miles long, cover sides of ranges that in this country would be considered about right for goat pastures, so steep and rugged are they. The patient island farmers cultivate every foot of them,however, the ledges extending high toward the summit and covering immense areas. The grade of the terraces is skilfully designed to carry the water down the mountainside without waste and without washing away the land, so that the crops are benefitted by a rainfall which would otherwise wash away all the soil from the rocks.—From the October St. Nicholas.

XMAS IS COMING

Get busy, boys and girls and others who are not contributing to the churches, and bring your magazines and newspapers to 611 West Broadway and get the money for them as soon as weighed.

CHRISTMAS MONEY IN YOUR SPARE TIME

IN ADDITION TO CHANCE OF WINNING VALUABLE PRIZES, GLENDALE PEOPLE CAN EARN GOOD INCOMES.

Enthusiasm is the word that properly describes the manner in which the announcement of the Lyons Grocery's Big Christmas Contest was received by the people of Glendale, and enthusiasm and aggressive work will be what will count in favor of those who enter the campaign.

Hundreds of Dollars in Cash Will Be Given Away

The Lyons Grocery, located opposite the city hall on West Broadway, starts a big Christmas contest Monday, in which they will give away $250 in prizes, including:

Your choice of $40 in gold or a six months' scholarship in the Glendale Commercial School; $20 in gold or a three months' scholarship in the Glendale Commercial School; a $22.50 lady's gold wrist watch; a $13.50 lady's gold wrist watch, or the equivalent in trade at the Lyons grocery, and the fifth and last prize $5 in gold, and hundreds of dollars in cash, for to all who do not win a prize a commission of five per cent will be paid on all business turned in.

You Can Make $25 a Week Even If You Don't Win a Prize

Besides the free nomination votes with which every contestant starts, 2000 votes are given with every dollar grocery coupon sold. The person getting the most votes wins. Nothing is easier to sell than grocery coupons, as nearly everyone spends from $15 to $60 a month for food. Whether you win a prize or not, it is possible to sell from $10 to $100 worth of grocery coupons a day. The commission of five per cent on this would net you from 50 cents to $5 a day. Pretty good money, isn't it?

Enter Campaign Now

For further particulars or information phone the Lyons Grocery, Sunset 144, Home 1441, or better yet, call in person, get your first lot of grocery coupons and be one of the first to start in this big Battle of Votes which begins Monday, November 20, and continues for about twenty-five days. You can win if you wish, for in this contest you make your own luck. No chance to lose. You win a valuable prize or money for Christmas. Start now. adv.

the foliage is wholly renewed, and one bright color succeeds another as the seasons pass.

The following is a list of deciduous trees suitable for street, boulevard and park planting in California:

Big Leaf Maple (Acer Macrophyllum). One of the best trees for a curbstone tree and suitable to lead the list. It is often called Oregon maple or California maple. The great advantage of this tree lies in the fact that it is a native tree and thoroughly adapted to all soils and conditions although doing best in loamy soils. In cultivation it is remarkable for its rapid growth, clean habits, hardiness and resistance to windbreakage.

Norway Maple (Acer Platanoides). In the northern and central part of the state this tree matures in great perfection. It is not found in best condition in any place where there is a great heat in the summer season, for like all Eastern maples, it does not enjoy the dry heat of California summers.

Hard Maple (Acer Saccharum). The hard maple, as well as most of the Eastern and European maples, does well in parts of California, some of them showing pleasant autumn colors.

Catalpas. A rapidly growing tree, but producing durable wood. They grow well in all California localities. The trees need protection as the limbs are very easily broken.

Tulip Tree (Liriodendron Tulipifera). This tree grows exceedingly well in California. It is a handsome species in foliage and in flower. The tree is slow in growth and needs continued protection and care when young.

Poplars. The poplars for street trees are at best makeshifts. They are rapid growing trees, reaching maturity quickly and showing rapid signs of decline. They sucker freely and obnoxiously, and fill the neighboring top soil with fine roots which quickly impoverish the soil. All the members of the family are at home in California. The Carolina poplar is a splendid tree, surpassing in its habit of growth or outline of crown the big leaf maple. The silver poplar is a round-headed tree of very striking foliage. The Lombardy poplars serve most generally as wind breaks on the country roads.

Elms. The American elm is an ideal street tree and grows well in California. It is somewhat subject to wind breakage of branches and is safer in the lee of other trees. The Scotch elm is the most desirable of all the elms as a street tree in California. It has a stout, round trunk, symmetrical crown and comes into full foliage in the middle of February, two months earlier than the cork elm. The cork elm is the standard tree for the sidewalk by reason of its hardiness and vigor. It has been more widely used than any other species in California.

Ginkgo. The ginkgo or maidenhair tree is the sacred tree of Japan and China, and some excellent specimens are found in California. It is of rather slow growth, but is interesting on account of its historical association and its foliage.

Valley Oak (Quercus Lobata). This is a native tree, the celebrated "weeping oak" of the interior valleys. It is of rapid growth and either assumes or may be made readily to assume the tall elm-like habit.

Walnut. Both the Eastern and native black walnut make grand shade trees. The English walnut is of a tropical type and is most successful when grafted on the native walnut.

Pecan. The pecan makes a good growth both on the coast and the lowlands of the interior valley. It is best admired as a roadside tree.

Linden. This is a standard type of street tree and all species grow well in all parts of California.

Chestnut. The Italian chestnut is a tree of rapid growth, cleanly built trunk and branches and handsome foliage. Single specimens are very symmetrical and impressive and give a dense shade.

Oriental Plane or Sycamore. These trees do very well throughout California and are a standard street tree.

Locust. The old-fashioned locust, which makes a dense shade and produces a wealth of large, fragrant blossoms, will always claim consideration as a shade tree, and is ever likely to be chosen for hot and dry situations where other trees may fail.

The Ailanthus or Pride of China. This tree is of rapid growth, tall and handsome. The main objections to it are a profusion of suckers and the heavy odor. The Texas umbrella is somewhat of the same variety but more desirable to the tree planter.

The Princess Tree. Known also as the Paulownia. It has very large, heart-shaped leaves and large violet flowers.

Birch. These well known white bark, hardy trees are beautiful in clumps or as single trees. The cutleaf, creeping birch is a most graceful and desirable tree and quite rapid in growth under ordinary conditions.

Other deciduous trees suited to street and park planting are the ash, bottle tree, camphor, jacaranda, Kentucky coffee tree, sweet gum, mulberry, olive, willow, flowering plum, and the Catalina cherry.

Evergreen Trees

Acacias. These evergreen flowering trees, chiefly from Australia, constitute an important feature of our exotic silva. The well known "black wattle tree" of Australia is a medium sized tree of rapid growth, with beautiful fern-like foliage and brilliant yellow blossoms. Blackwood acacia is an upright, symmetrical, pyramidal tree, of rapid growth with dense foliage. Very neat and trim in appearance, making an excellent sidewalk tree. It is useful for semi-arid regions and for north and south streets, to which all evergreens should be limited.

The silver wattle is somewhat similar to the "black wattle." The golden wattle is a medium sized or small, well branched tree with heavy foliage and dense clusters of beautiful yellow flowers, borne very profusely in springtime. The bark is valuable for tanning purposes. The tree is of rapid growth, but often suffers from breakage by wind. It is very ornamental when in bloom.

Magnolia. The magnolia grandaflora does well in some sheltered localities, but needs a good depth of soil, which is often hard to secure on high ground. It requires plenty of moisture in order to insure fine blossoms. In such conditions it is one of the most magnificent trees known, its large, strong scented flowers appearing all the year round in some places.

Pepper Tree. This tree is characterized by its low spreading habit, fine foliage, drooping branchlets, and strings of red berries. One of the most extensively planted trees in California, as it thrives everywhere and under the most unfavorable circumstances.

Grevillea. Among evergreens, Grevillea robusta, the Australian silky-oak, is admirable for its quick and pyramidal growth, as well as for the elegance of its fern-like foliage and the profusion of its orange colored blossoms, were it not for the brittleness of its branches in locations much exposed to the wind. In a sheltered place it is a great beauty.

Eucalyptus. The eucalyptus species of which scores have been introduced from Australia do much to make the California landscape surprising to Eastern and European eyes. Besides the species planted for fuel, timber and shade—such as the blue gum, red gum, grey gum, etc.—there are other species which are far superior for floral effects. Among the last named are the eucalyptus polyanthema, the "Karri" or eucalyptus diversicolor, eucalyptus curnuta, eucalyptus citriodora, eucalyptus robusta, eucalyptus colophylla, eucalyptus leucoxylon, eucalyptus ficolia and the eucalyptus crebra.

Other evergreen trees of useful and ornamental value are the cedars, cypress, araucaria, pines of all kinds, ironwood, sequoias, loquats, thuyas, Brisbane box, corab, madrones, engenia and ficus.

Palms

The palms which have been grown to a considerable extent in California are the following kinds: Several varieties of the cocos palms, Phoenix palms, the California fan palm, the Japanese fan palm, fruiting date palm, the Canary island date palm, Kentias palm, Sabals palm and the Thrinax palm.

Shrubs

The following shrubs are both useful and ornamental for street and park growing and well suited to California: The lilacs, sumacs, buckthorns, California juniper, California holly, evergreen cherry, monkey flower, artiplexes, carpenteria, yellow tree poppy, flannel bush, manzanita, false mallow, wild honeysuckle, mountain mahogany and matilija poppy, and among the foreign shrubs that will flourish there are the flowering almond, azaleas, rhodendron, cassias, cantua, cumellies, Japanese cherry, coral tree, coprosmas, cotoneaster, Kerria, crataegus, daphne, dentzia, hydrangeas, Jerusalem cherry, laburnum, lavender, laurestinus, malva, oleander, peonies, poinsettias, Japanese quince, snowballs, spiraeas, tamarix, weigelias, caesalpinas, crape myrtles, laurels, Japanese privets, Parkinsonias and pittosoporums.

Edgar, aged five, was driving from the station on his first visit to Maine. His mother, noticing a troubled look on his face as he looked about, said: "What's the matter, dear? Don't you like the beautiful country?"

"Yes, mother, but on my map Maine is red!"

AT GLENDALE HIGH

Two dozen new members were initiated into the mysteries of "La Tertulia" in the school gymnasium yesterday evening. Fun was the order of the evening. Miss Fenton and the several committees had arranged an excellent program of stunts, games and refreshments, and several special features were provided besides.

A number of young eavesdroppers, attempting to view the performance from without, were surprised by sheets of water which appeared from a star-lit sky. This "special feature" caused no end of merriment for the party, but for the shivering victims, who were afterward found drying themselves by the rapidly cooling furnace, it was no joke.

Another "special feature" was the dramatic attempt of the refreshment committee to retain enough pie and ice cream to go 'round in the kitchen. With the assistance of Alec and Roy, it was successful in cornering a portion of the ice cream, but the enemy, led by M. Z. Brown, had long before cleared the trenches of the last piece of pie.

After the new members had received the initiation, everyone joined in games and merry-making, and so swiftly did the minutes fly that it seemed but a short while before it was time to leave.

Another active club of Glendale high is "Der Deutcher Verein." After a business meeting held in the German room yesterday morning, this club enjoyed what might be called a peanut party, since peanuts played an important part in furnishing the fun.

Everybody had a good time but the peanuts. Poor Mr. Peanut was the goat. Everything that could be done to peanuts was done. All the fun was had at the expense of the poor peanuts. There were peanut games and peanut contests, and peanuts were eaten.

And it was all Miss Eggert's idea, this peanut plan. When the party was over and the guests departed with their pockets full of peanuts, everyone declared Miss Eggert a charming hostess.

THAT'S RIGHT—WHY?

"Oh, all women are alike," said the cynic.

"Why, then," asked a woman, "should any man commit bigamy?"

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Rev. H. E. Wilhite, the evangelist, will preach again at both services tomorrow. He has made many friends in this church at the services which he has conducted, and they will be glad to hear that he will be with us again. He came out to prayer meeting Wednesday evening, and was a great help in making it a most devotional service, in addition to attracting a much better attendance than usual.

Mr. Wilhite will deliver "A Chart Sermon on the Bible—A Key to the Scriptures" at the morning hour, and in the evening a most attractive theme, "Mother, Home and Heaven." As many as will are asked to wear a white carnation in honor of mother.

The Bible school is growing very rapidly with the stimulation which the contest is giving to it.

THE REASON WHY

An English militant crusader strolled into a barn when a young man was milking a cow. With a snort she asked: "How is it that you are not at the front, young man?"

"Because, ma'am," answered the milker, "there ain't no milk at that end."

RIGHT FOR THE FIRST TIME

Last winter a masquerade party was given at New York, at which practically all the great musical lights in the country were present. Very few knew who any of the others were, but in some way Josef Hofmann, the famous pianist, knew one of the disguised men to be a leading musical critic in the city. During the evening the latter, grasping the hand of the pianist, said:

"I don't know who you are, but this hand strikes me very much as the hand of a pianist."

"Quite right," answered Hofmann, "and it is the first time I have ever known you to be right in a musical criticism."

And, as no one unmasked during the evening, the critic is still wondering who said it.

"I am very glad, George," said the teacher, "to see that you are polite enough to offer the oranges first to your little sister."

"Yes'm," responded George, "because then she's got to be polite, too, and take the little one."

By planting trees along the north side of its tracks to the Pacific coast of the United States, one of the great railroad companies has found a happy means, not only of protecting its right-of-way, but of sparing the patrons of the road the sight of advertising billboards along the route. The trees, which, by the way, are being planted at the rate of 20,000 a day, will replace unsightly fences, so that the undertaking, from the standpoint of the passenger, seems to have much to commend it.—Christian Science Monitor.
